NEW CEO FOR INTERNAXX

Luxembourg, 16th February 2011: TD Bank Group (TD) has appointed Annemarie Jung as CEO of Internaxx Bank, the Luxembourg based online trading portal for international investors.

Jung brings a substantial background in European financial services, gained through various senior positions in international companies such as KPMG and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Prior to joining Internaxx, she was Head of Risk Management for Retail, Commercial and Corporate Banking at BGL BNP Paribas.

Ten years ago, Internaxx launched a pioneering trading site offering international markets to expatriate and international investors. The service prospered alongside the boom in professional global mobility, confidence in trading technology and rising popularity of self-directed investing.

Says Jung; "We are that rarest of financial services, a nimble specialist with a personal touch and truly global reach. Internaxx's fortunes have always been linked to those with the initiative and self-confidence to seek out new regions and new markets in which to invest and I could not be joining at a more exciting time".

Internaxx's strategic position is strengthened by its integration with TD Bank, which is one of the few banks in the world rated Aaa by Moody's. TD ranks among the world's leading online financial services firms, with CDN$620 billion in assets ( on 31st October 2010) and more than 19 million customers worldwide.
